WOMEN IN POLITICS

What is going to be the ultimate answer to woman's entry into politics? Is she going to oust man entirely from what has been his prerogative for centuries, or is she going to run side by side with man in the political world?

There is only one group of people who can answer that question and that is the women themselves.

And first and foremost, in our minds, they are going to have to take the sentimental vote by the heels and cast it out of their organization—cast it out so far that it will never come back and thereby correct some of the wrong which it has already accomplished.

Because a man has held a public office and dies, is no just reason why his wife should have that office, unless she has proven herself fit for that position. If the death of her husband has robbed her of her means of livelihood, and the city, county, or state feels that it should give her a pension, let them do it without giving an inexperienced, unfit person a political job as a plaything.

Representative John W. Langley of Kentucky has just resigned his seat in the House of Representatives in order to serve a two year sentence for violation of the prohibition act and some of his supporters are blaming Mrs. Langley for the job. Maybe Mrs. Langley is fit for the job, maybe here training and experience has developed a mind that can handle the work which her husband was originally chosen to carry out, but if past examples can be taken as a criterion Mrs. Langley is not fit, but is being boomed for sentimental reasons.

Woman is in politics. She is there to stay. But she is threatening her position there by the sentimental vote. A housewife may have the training to be a political leader. If she is she has proven it through her leadership in her club life, in her church work or in other positions which she has had thrust upon her during her lifetime.

If she has been merely the wife of her husband, with no interest outside of her home other than to entertain the friends of her husband and to be known as a "good fellow" she has not established her right to a public office held by her husband in case he should die or be removed from his office.

It is a dangerous fire that women are playing with. If they wish men to respect their views in politics, they will have to get into public office through their own efforts and not ride in on the wave of glory of their husbands or pity caused by some unforeseen incident, occurring to their husband making it impossible for him to continue in office.

Women who have followed their husbands into office certainly have not covered themselves with glory and in a great many cases have shown themselves entirely unfit for the office which they are holding or have held. And a review of some of the "acts and accomplishments" of women who have obtained their office through this method will substantiate that statement.

If women want to have a place in the political makeup of this country, she is going to have to earn it through her own effort and hard work.

DETROIT USES MOTOR BUS TO SOLVE PROBLEM OF ITS TRAFFIC

Acute Transportation Problem
Answered by Motor Bus
In Detroit

By ROBERT SHAW
Reprinted from The Oakland Post-Enquirer by special permission. (Mr. Shaw was sent by The Oakland Post-Enquirer to important cities of the east and middle west where he made a thorough study of the best transportation services.)

How the Motor Bus Is Helping Detroit Answer Its Transportation Problem

Detroit is the fourth largest city in the United States.

Its rapid growth has given rise to extremely acute transportation problems.

The city is spreading out like a great fan. In 10 years the area of the city has increased from 42 square miles to almost 100 square miles; hence the demand for service line extensions is insistent.

This remarkable and progressive city took the first step toward settling its transportation problem when it acquired the existing surface trolley car system.

This acquisition was completed in May, 1922. The Detroit United Railroads fought the plan for municipal ownership.

Charles E. Hughes, former secretary of state, acted as counsel for the private corporation in the fight against municipal ownership.

The prophecy was made that the city would face financial ruin.

This prophecy failed to materialize. Detroit is well on the way toward the ownership of a street railway and transportation system. (Continued on page 4)

Don't Think With Feet Advice of Rabbi to Students

(By Universal Service)
SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 20.—Exaggerated amusement and stereotyped education were scored today by Rabbi Louis I. Newman, pastor of Temple Emanuel, in addressing the graduating class of the Argonne Grammar school. He urged the students to think for themselves.

"In many cases our colleges are merely turning out intellectual sausages," he said. "The young men look alike, think alike and act alike."

Addressing the girls the Rabbi urged that their ambition in life go to something else besides cosmetics, clothes and dances.

"Too many young girls today think with their feet," he said.

"The A. B. C. of success is ambition, brains and character. Don't let your ambition mean mastering the Charleston—think with your head."

Speaking of the home Rabbi Newman said:

"The average modern home has become a debating society. Disputes between children and parents greet the ears the moment one enters. The blame lies principally with the children, who are as old today at 13 and 14 as we were at 19 and 20. That is, you think you are. The times move too fast. You move too fast. My advice is slow down, live your youth first before you assume the prerogatives of age."

Assists Then He Arrests Motorist

A "Good Samaritan" act was performed by Traffic Officer C. H. Nissen of Rodeo Wednesday when he extricated P. Calderon of Selby, his wife and several children from their overturned car near Rodeo. However, as soon as the car and family were righted, Nissen arrested Calderon on the charge of reckless driving. Nissen charges that the accident was due to reckless operation of the machine. Calderon is to appear before Judge Glass this week.

ANNUAL PAYROLL OF $26,424,500 IN CONTRA COSTA COUNTY GIVES IT IMPORTANT PLACE IN STATE

RICHMOND HAS PRACTICALLY HALF OF BIG PAYROLL AND ABOUT ONE THIRD OF COUNTY EMPLOYEES

An authentic survey of the employees annual payroll and yearly production of the various manufacturing plants in Contra Costa County which has just been prepared by the Contra Costa County Board of Supervisors shows the tremendous production and large payroll which helps to increase the wealth of the county.

A total of 17,428 employees with an annual payroll of $26,424,500 and a yearly production valued at $404,123,620 gives a comprehensive idea of the importance of this county on the Pacific Coast.

And Richmond has a goodly portion of this vast payroll either within its city limits or immediately adjacent. Practically half of the payroll or $11,265,800 is paid annually by the Richmond industries to its 6,126 employees.

This is one of the most conservative compilations of the county's industries that has even been made and the figures pared down to the last figure might in some cases be increased slightly. As they stand however they present an example of this county's importance in the manufacturing area of the San Francisco Bay Region.

It is interesting to note that although Richmond and vicinity has only about one third of the employees on the tabulation it has practically one half of the payroll, indicating that the scale of wages here is higher than that in the other sections of the county.

This list does not by any means take in the entire revenue flowing into the county for there are many other avenues of income that could not well be tabulated as manufacturing plants but still contribute a great deal to the upbuilding of the community.

The complete list as compiled for the County Board of Supervisors follows:

Roseville Bank Bandits Given Speedy Trials

AUBURN, Jan. 20.—Shortly before noon today the gates of Folsom State Prison clanged behind the three of the four desperate bandits who held up and robbed the Railroad Bank of Roseville of $45,000 Monday. The fourth is dead, killed by the policemen who captured the bandits a few hours after the hold-up. "Blackie" Ryan, confessed robber of thirteen banks, Thomas Newman and Joseph Reichen, appeared in the justice court for a preliminary hearing. "Blackie" was the spokesman for the trio, and when informed by Judge Davis that they might have a counsel to defend them stated that he wanted to get it over with, as long as they did not get away with the $45,000.

The trio pleaded guilty to robbery with deadly weapons and to previous convictions, and asked for immediate sentence.

Reichen confessed that, under the name of Raymond Parker, he had been sentenced to San Quentin prison from Marin County and had violated his parole. Newman admitted serving a term for burglary in Pennsylvania, and Ryan confessed to a term in the Missouri State prison for robbery.

SENATE SEATS CONTESTED

There are contests for the seats of four United States senators, a greater number than usual, to be taken up by the senate at its present session. The seats to be contested are those of Senator Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa, Thomas D. Schall, of Minnesota, elected in 1924 to succeed Senator Magnus Johnson; Sam G. Bratton, of New Mexico, and Gerald P. Nye, recently appointed by Governor Sorlie of North Dakota to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Ladd.

Senator Brookhart's seat is being contested by Dan F. Steck, who was the democratic candidate for senator from Iowa in the 1924 election. Brookhart's success seemed assured until a few weeks before the election when he attacked the national administration and lined up with Senator La Follette. This so angered a great number of the republicans of Iowa that they voted for Steck. The result was so close as to be still in doubt.

It is said that the outcome of this contest may have an effect on the election of 1926 when Senator Cummins will be a candidate to succeed himself.

The seating of Gerald P. Nye revolves about the right of the Governor of North Dakota to fill a senatorial vacancy by appointment, the opposition of Nye claiming that the law gives the governor no such right. Nye is said to be a radical and it is expected, will be supported in his efforts by the radicals in the senate.

The right of Mr. Schall, of Minnesota is being contested by Magnus Johnson, who claims that Schall defeated him by unfair methods. In New Mexico Sam G. Bratton defeated Senator H. O. Bursum in the 1924 election on the face of returns, but Bursum claims that he himself was legally elected and has filed a contest.

A GOOD LESSON

Newspaper comment, both in this country and Great Britain, has been to the effect that within four years America will pay Great Britain $4,000,000,000 for rubber at prices fixed by the British monopoly. It is a good lesson for us at the necessity of protecting ourselves against such foreign monopolies.

During the World War, if it had not been for our domestic beet sugar industry, we would have been in much the same position as to sugar.

It is better to give a reasonable protection and encouragement to basic American industries than to find ourselves at the mercy of a foreign power when buying essential commodities. Sugar is even more important than rubber. The American people are the greatest sugar eaters on earth and it forms part of every meal to every American family. For that reason it is essential that our domestic sugar industry be kept on a safe basis, which will prevent it from being crippled or destroyed by foreign interests.

Bacon's Rebellion

You must not get the idea that everything was peaceful as a summer's day in the early colony at Virginia.

These hardy settlers were bound to have differences from time to time and sometimes the differences between them and the governor sent out to them by the king of England became bitter enough for actual warfare.

About the middle of the seventeenth century there lived in the Virginia colony a rich young lawyer by the name of Nathaniel Bacon. He was a brilliant young fellow and the people rallied to him. He was elected to an assembly which drew up a code of laws which they called Bacon's Laws.

Now the governor, whose name was Berkeley, was not likely to be pleased with so high-handed a ceremony. He seemed to be quite out of the reckoning. The people respected this young upstart, Bacon, more than they respected him.

So he used the authority vested in his high office and dissolved the assembly. He went further. He proclaimed Bacon a traitor and a rebel. To Berkeley, Bacon's behavior had been nothing short of high-handed treason.

But Bacon was not the sort of man to sit down tamely and wear the brand of traitor. He raised an army and marched on Jamestown, ready to lay siege even to the governor's house.

As he marched the story has it that he seized the wives of two friends of the governor and put them in front of his troops. He believed, and rightly, that his army would not be fired upon for fear of hurting the two women. This is how his army came to be called the "White-Apron" Brigade.

Bacon's rebellion was successful for the moment and he framed a letter asking redress of grievances to the king. But before any lasting reform of the government could be effected, Bacon fell ill and died. His cause collapsed for want of his leadership. Many of his followers were tried by court-martial and hanged.

Thus nothing was really gained by the rebellion. And the colonies continued to be ruled from the English throne for a hundred years more.

Boots—Boots—Boots—Boots—Forty Thousand Million of 'Em

Seven—six—eleven—five—nine—on—twenty—four—eleven—seventeen—thirty—two the day before—boots—boots—boots—movin' up an' down again!

Don't—don't—don't—look at what's in front of you. (Boots—boots—boots—movin' up an' down again!)

Men—men—men—men—men go mad with watchin' 'em.

Taint—so—bad—by—day—because o' com'pany. But—right—brings—long—strings—of—forty—thousand—million.

Boots—boots—boots—boots—boots—up an' down again!

From Rudyard Kipling's "Boots."

Kipling now adds the palm of fashion prophesy to his poetic laurels. For it's boots—kid boots—forty thousand million of 'em—black kid boots, tan kid boots, colored kid boots, tall kid boots, short kid boots—the sundry and diverse rodents mobilized by Mr. Pied Piper have nothing on the variety of kid boots now movin' up an' down in Paris, London, New York and shortly, no doubt, in points west.

But there is reason as well as prophecy to Kipling's post-prandial recitative masterpiece. For these boots not only protect delicate feminine hosiery from the boisterous assaults of rain, snow, and slush, not only accentuate by contrast and reveal by concealment, but by virtue of a diversity of colors, patterns, and trimmings, the boots supply a harmonious note of novelty, beauty, and allurements to the feminine ensemble.

In short, the drab utility of the ugly canvas goshawk seems to have capitulated to the double destrillity of the leather boot, which, because of its beauty is likewise proudly worn while the sun shines and all is dry underneath. So far in America, only a few of the elite can afford the high prices charged. Needless to remark, however, enterprising American manufacturers are approaching a state of mild frenzy in a scramble to get in quickly on a popular "killing." It is reported by cable dispatch in the New York Sun—"The kid boot craze has set British factories working overtime." 1,300,000 pairs are reported to have been sold in London alone.

Dolores looked at the girl against the side of her highball glass. "I suppose that your brother will be interested in knowing where you are tonight? It must be a little—very inconvenient at times to have to report all your comings and goings—to have tabs kept upon your very little movements!"

Paul scowled and did not answer for a moment.

"I may as well tell you," he finally said, "that Michael and I had a quarrel today and I have left his house. I feel very badly about it for he has always been so good to me. But I cannot go along being scolded and nursed all my life. Besides, his attitude this morning was both unfair and unjust."

"I am so sorry," she lied suavely. "It is unfortunate that two such brothers have to disagree. I'm sure, though, that you were in the right, for Michael is a little headstrong and won't tolerate anyone's ideas or opinions but his own."

"Do you know him well, Mademoiselle?" Paul asked suddenly.

Dolores eyed his eyes and glanced around the bright room with a cool stimulation of unconcern.

"Yes, Paul, I know him—very well. Too well, I guess, for my friendship has brought me much unhappiness."

Paul was all concern and bewilderment, and indignation. "Oh, I'm sorry. Do you know, I'm seeing Michael lately in a new and not so good light. Even the reason for our quarrel remains a mystery to me for he asked me to do something which was both distasteful and unwarranted, and then refused to give a reason for his request."

Dolores assumed a downcast air and gave him a wan little smile. "So he didn't want you to have anything with me?"

Paul stared in amazement. What an all-seeing, all-knowing woman she was!

Dolores went on plaintively: "Yet you were big enough and had enough determination to do as you wished in spite of his threats. I admire you very much for that, Paul." Her large, steadfast eyes registered admiration. "But I'm sorry I'm the cause of it. Possibly, you had better do as he orders and not see me again. He has always been so good to you—"

Paul suddenly felt very manly and emancipated. "I shall do as my heart dictates!" he said. "But how do you know what he quarreled about? I haven't said a word about the reason to anybody!" he added in a perplexed voice.

"I did not learn it from you, Michael, himself, told me, earlier this evening."

"You saw Michael?" he exclaimed, incredulously. "Why, I don't understand."

Artfully making believe that he was leading her on, Dolores told the "story"—of course, as she wanted to tell it, in a way subtly designed to intrigue Paul's sympathies, and to make him resentful against Michael. It was a clever recital, with all damaging details left out, and with Michael's stubbornness emphasized.

CHAPTER VIII

Another Springtime and another pair of lovers had come to Versailles!

A scant two days after their night adventure Michael called upon Colette with that humility of gestating love which dissolves in sweet impatience all bulwarks of social caste. Flustered, delighted, shyly gay, she was swept into the infectious mood of his plan—a picnic to Versailles.

To Versailles and the old forest adjacent thereto, one day or another wend all the attuned young hearts of Paris, there to enrich and insure the fullness of their betrothal under the tutelage of the storied past, the scene of an ancient court romances haunted by the gracious shades of lords and ladies.

And so to the pure fragile beauty of Versailles—coronet suburb of the Queen of the world's capitals, illustrious monument of a dead monarchy's buried glories—and to the dawning fragrance of the forest came Colette and Michael of a rare morning.

After hours of troubled brooding over the emotional turmoil of his life, while the bending walls of his house of cards cracked in his ears, Michael had thought to find peace by sharing with Colette for a day the simple pleasures of the poor. The only way to do that was to step down—or was it up?—to her plane; and thus it was that this morning the Royal Prince of the Blood of Russia rubbed commoner shoulders and breathed the odors of bourgeoisie crowds, not excluding the ubiquitous Latin garlic.

What matter how they reached Versailles—by Metro, barouche, or on foot? Enough that they got there in the young hours of the day; they two, alone, bearing a lunch basket packed by Colette with the ten fumbling thumbs of her nervous hands; enough that they wandered in the forest and drank deep of the cup of heart witchery there in the half lights and murmuring stillnesses of the old woods.

Colette was swiftly lost in the facile ecstasies of the easily satisfied.

But Michael was more fundamentally stirred; for him, the transition to simple raptures was not painless or brief, but a difficult partition through the unyielding neck of cynicism. Once gained, however, his joy was solid and sustained; he heard the Pipes of Pan in the great, soaring treetop arches of this enchanted, green-aided Cathedral wherein the steaming dew of morning were rising like incense into the leathery choirs overhead. Something vibrated within Michael; some disused chords of his soul.

What civilized man has not, when newly re-experiencing the spell of the outdoors, been touched by this poignant, bittersweet redundancy of memory; by a sudden spiritual return to a belief in fairies and all good things?

"We're Big Babies in the Woods," he laughed gleefully, the eyes, every boy in him strummed by a light bow of far-away days and long-age dreams. He abandoned himself unashamed to a bubbling exuberance of youthful spirits.

Neighboring Cities To Have Gas Service Installed Shortly

As the result of an informal complaint made to the California Railroad Commission by Rev. Charles Phillips more than 300 families of Redwood, Placerville, and Hercules will receive benefits of gas service within the next few weeks. The Coast Counties Gas and Electric Company have agreed to install the necessary distributing system to serve gas in that territory.

The commission has agreed to have the gas supplied through a tap on the mains of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company near Sonoma.

The cost of the extension of the service will be about $20,000. It will be borne by the Coast Counties company. Investigators for the commission have shown that enough consumers can be connected with the mains to warrant the expenditure of the funds.

Tire Repairing Cold Cash In Your Pocket

There are two ways to take care of a tire injury. One way is to put a blowout patch in the tire and let it stay there.

The other way—and the only good way—is to use the blowout patch only as a temporary repair. At the first opportunity the tire should be taken to a competent and able vulcanizer for permanent repair. This means saving thousands of miles of the tire's life.

Loving Booths are Urged for Church by C. E. Secretary

(By Universal Service)
BAKERSFIELD, Jan. 20.—Partitions courting booths in churches where loving swains might pursue their love and woo fair damsels with all the comforts of home as a substitution for roadside automobile parties and night necking parties is the plan suggested by Dr. Ira Landrith, national extension secretary of the Christian Endeavor Union, who last night addressed a great audience of young and old persons in the High School auditorium.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the Kern County Christian Endeavor Society.

"I would have a great hall in every church and around the sides would be little partitioned booths," he elaborated.

"In these booths courting might be respectfully and efficiently carried on. Why are boys and girls

Knife Wielder In Justice Court

Felix Salaranzo, accused of knifing Joseph Ortega and I. Tiscerano, was formally charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder when he appeared before Justice of the Peace Frank L. Glass at Martinez yesterday. It is alleged that Salaranzo wounded Ortega and Tiscerano in a battle over a pretty Mexican girl at a dance hall at Pittsburg on Sunday night. The charge was made by Chief of Police C. Scudero of Pittsburg.

According to the story told the police, the row had started in the dance hall and the two men, Salaranzo and Tiscerano, rushed out into the street to settle their difficulties in the good old Anglo-Saxon way. It is alleged that Tiscerano knocked Salaranzo senseless and immediately upon his recovery he rushed to Tiscerano with a knife in his hand.

Ortega, an innocent bystander, rushed in to separate the two and received dangerous wounds in doing so.

Leo Morales and C. Tellez, other bystanders started a brawl during the course of the Salaranzo-Tiscerano tussle. Both men are now in the Pittsburg jail under a charge of disturbing the peace.

Evangelist Urges Faith In Christ To Big Audience

A large congregation heard the sermon of Reverend R. V. Jackson evangelist at the Community Methodist Church last night. The sermon was "Before turning loose of Christ, as a Christian, to whom shall we turn?"

Reverend Jackson in his sermon declared: "Christ has stood the test of the century. The religion he gave us is the most partial ever known to man."

"No man has even spoken like Him or compared with Him. He has demonstrated His power as a leading man."

"The brokenhearted can come to Him and find comfort. If you follow sin, the pathway leads to a wrecked life. But if you follow Christ, you are led to the eternal life."

Reverend Jackson appealed to the listeners to place their faith in Christ.

The subject of Reverend Jackson's sermon tonight will be: "The heroism that has stood the test."

Tonight will be the Boy's Club night. The Pioneer boys and their parents will attend the meeting.

San Leandro Fire Chief Resigns

SAN LEANDRO, Jan. 20.—At the San Leandro Volunteer fire department's annual meeting Tuesday night, the storm that has been in the offing for the last five years broke when Bert Rogers, fire chief tendered his resignation. Party friction in the department and pressure of personal business was the reasons given by the chief for his resignation.

Rogers declared that his interest in being chief was only for the good of the department. He announced that he had spent over $100 to go to the meeting of the fire chiefs held at Seattle this year and in addition ruined several suits in fighting fires. Rogers declared that he was forced to neglect his own business because of the time taken fighting fires and attending departmental business.

It was announced by Mayor Edwin Buck of the Cherry City, that doubtless Rogers resignation "was out of order."

INQUIRING MOTORIST
Asks Questions of
Walter P. Chrysler
PRESIDENT
CHRYSLER CORPORATION

QUESTION: What are some of the mechanical improvements in motor cars made during the past two years?

ANSWER: The four-wheel hydraulic brake is one.

Thermostatic control of motor to assure greater working efficiency, is another.

The oil filter which cleanses the crankcase oil as the motor runs.

The air cleaner which keeps dust and dirt out of the engine.

Elimination of side-sway by a new method of spring suspension.

Greater driving ease by pivotal steering.

Elimination of vibration by development of an extra-large, perfectly balanced crankshaft with seven shimless bearings in which the crankshaft operates on a film of oil without metal-to-metal contact.

QUESTION: Are balloon tires here to stay?

ANSWER: I think so. They have helped to relieve strain and eliminate vibration. They make riding easier without doubt.

QUESTION: Should balloon tires be watched more closely than ordinary tires?

ANSWER: The pressure in balloon tires should be watched very closely. It should be the same in each tire. Bad effects from shimmying are often due to low pressure in one tire and high in another.

MARTIN DURKIN TAKEN BY ST. LOUIS POLICE

(By Universal Service)

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 20.—Martin Durkin, Chicago's sensational desperado, was captured here today and is on his way back to Chicago.

Five candidates for murder in Chicago, always a hard job, were taken to St. Louis six weeks ago.

The couple were taken from a rooming house in the Texas special which he and the girl occupied when they were surprised by federal agents and St. Louis detectives.

Acting on a tip from the authorities in San Francisco, where Durkin was suspected of stealing an automobile, federal agents trailed him to Texas and thence to St. Louis, always a step behind the notorious slayer.

Durkin admitted his identity and permitted himself to be taken back to Chicago without protest, awaiting extradition.

Accompanied by a heavy guard of federal agents, the couple left here this afternoon and were due to arrive in Chicago at 10:30 tonight.

H. L. Scott, head of Federal Detectives (Robert Kaiser of St. Louis, learned that Durkin was on the northbound Texas Special. At Webster Grove, a suburb, the train was stopped by arrangement with railroad officials and searched.

Guards were placed all about it and Scott and Kaiser broke down the door of the stateroom. Before Durkin could reach for a revolver from his formidable arsenal of weapons, the officers had shackled him. Durkin paled, but soon regained his composure.

"You got me all right," he said. "Dressed in keeping with his cognomen of the 'sheik bandit,' Durkin's nonchalant air that had characterized his criminal activities returned.

He introduced his pretty blonde girl companion as his wife. "I met her in Yarnell, Ill., about two months ago," Durkin said. "Her name was Irma Sullivan and her father is the village blacksmith, Bert Sullivan."

"Irma is a nice sweet girl, goes to Sunday school regularly. She never knew me as Marty Durkin. I'm awfully sorry for her sake."

SHIPS GROUND TO PIECES IN FROZEN GULF

(By Universal Service)

LENINGRAD, Jan. 20.—Two ships have been ground to pieces by ice and sunk in the Gulf of Finland, according to reports received here today. One is a German ship, Alterheim, which sank seven miles from Reval, the other ship has not been identified.

Owing to the notorious roughness of the ice field it is impossible for airplanes to land and rescue crews. No word has been received concerning their fates.

Aviators have been sent to drop food to starving crews, some of whom have been ice bound more than a month. Twenty-eight ships have been counted imprisoned in ice. The protracted cold has increased the frozen area of the gulf far into the Baltic Sea. The ice field extends 280 miles from Leningrad and forty miles west of Reval.

The car that put the War in Warren

JIM WARREN bought a car—the "Gingerbread Six."

Never heard of it before, but he happened to be walking along Automobile Row and during a lapse moment his foot slipped—he stepped inside.

"Nifty boat", said the salesman.

"Not bad," said Jim, as paint and doo-dabs got in their hypnotic work.

"But why isn't it advertised?" asked Jim.

"Don't need to advertise a job like that," was the forearmed reply. Sounded logical. But—

Six months later Jim had a collection of bolts and grease-cups and broken springs and disjointed steering mechanism and a motor that almost ran.

"Never again!" said Jim. "The car that's little known and never advertised hasn't much responsibility; little to live up to. Before I buy another car—or another anything—I'm going to get the facts. I'm going to read the advertisements about automobiles—or whatever I'm buying."

Advertisements are an invaluable guide to intelligent buying. Read them regularly

Permission to conduct boxing contests in the Winters Hall, Eleventh street and Macdonald avenue, was received yesterday by Harry Eagles and Sam Schomer from Walter A. Yarwood, secretary of the California State Boxing commission.

The first card is to be presented at the hall on the evening of February 5, and according to the two promoters, a first-class card is being arranged. Special emphasis is to be put on the main events, which, according to Eagles will be of the highest type obtainable.

Local boxing fights will be given opportunities to show their ability in the preliminaries, until they have established a reputation. Local men who show their ability will also be given a chance at the main events in the course of time.

All types of fights are to be presented from the short four rounders to the full ten rounds, allowed under the State Boxing law.

It is the plan of Eagles and Schomer to present the fights every other week. A permanent night has not yet been selected, but Thursday night is being favored.

Alterations are being made in the hall to allow the placing of a regulation ring, three feet from the floor and to seat 1500 fans. A balcony is to be built to increase the seating capacity of the hall.

Eagles and Schomer have not as yet established local offices in Richmond, but expect to do so in a short time.

Local boxers who are interested are invited to send in their

LUMSKI WINS FROM PELKEY IN 7 ROUNDS

OAKLAND, Jan. 20.—Leo Lumski of Aberdeen, Washington won on a knockout in the seventh round of his fight with Pelkey Oakland middleweight at the Auditorium tonight.

The knockout came under unusual circumstances.

Lumski crowded Pelkey to the rope and crossed him with a right to the chin. Pelkey stumbled and fell through the ropes crashing down on the press box. Falling, he injured his leg. Al Wainwright, the referee, counted him out from the ring. He gave him the full count of twenty seconds the count given when a boxer falls out of the ring. Pelkey was unable to continue the battle.

Lumski was the aggressor throughout the fight and scored repeatedly with heavy rights to the head. Pelkey refused to lead, fighting a defensive battle throughout.

Dr. A. Thompson of Oakland, who examined Pelkey after the fight, reported that Pelkey had sprained a tendon in his right leg.

The other bouts resulted as follows:

Abe Malista of Manila, knocked out Demon Runyon in 55 second of the first round in their four round fight.

Harry LaBara, of St. Paul, won a four round decision from Cy-clong Palmer of Aberdeen. Frankie McCann, of Leandro, and Johnny Reng of Watsonville, fought six rounds to a draw.

Mason Giffin of San Francisco won a six round decision from George Russell, of Allentown, Pennsylvania.

Boys of Hi-Y Club Make Score Book For High School

The boys Hi-Y club at the Richmond Union high school have just finished an individual score book for the students of the high school for the coming basketball season. The book contains the names that have been arranged for the year with a space for the recording of the scores.

On the fly-leaf is the "Side Lines Sportsmanship" which tells the spectators of the way sportsmanship is shown on the sidelines.

The following is the Sidelines Sportsmanship:

Give the opposing team a square deal.

Be friendly to visitors.

Remember there's a right and a wrong time to cheer.

Don't applaud the referee when he calls a foul on a member of the opposing team.

Be a good winner and a graceful loser.

The programs were printed in the school print shop by the printing classes of John E. Doney, printing instructor.

Warning Is Sent Out to Investors By State Dept.

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 20.—Warning the investigating public that New York and eastern bucketshop operators are attempting to obtain a "sucker list" in California, Edwin M. Daugherty, Commissioner of Corporations, today took steps to check the activities of the fly-by-night concerns.

The bucketshop operators have begun an advertising campaign in California papers. Commissioner Daugherty stated, in which they offer to mail to any person "free" a copy of a manual of New York stocks, the cotton market and the Chicago grain market. The purpose, the Commissioner stated, was to get the names of prospective investors, who would be deluged with "get rich quick" offers.

"These concerns are barred from doing business in California as they have defrauded the general public," Commissioner Daugherty stated. The postal authorities also are investigating them and we are co-operating in putting them out of business. We have warned these concerns against advertising in California and the reputable members of the New York Stock Exchange are co-operating in stamping out forever bucket shop operations."

San Francisco Bridge Co. Head Welcomed Here

pany; Mrs. Helen B. Kingsbury, secretary of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce and Paul Edwards of the Richmond Industrial Commission.

The marine railway, shops, floating equipment, warehouse and other features of the bridge company's development were viewed. In an interview with the RECORD-HERALD, Manager Muhs declared that work on the harbor is the surest way to make Richmond grow and that plans should be laid at once to get a further Federal appropriation, there being but $128,000 left of the Federal fund. He said:

"Richmond is fortunate in having a harbor project like this and in having citizenry with the enterprise to inaugurate it and the aggressive and progressive spirit to push it along to completion. In our line of contracting we know the value of deep water with developed acreage on the bay of San Francisco. There is an actual congestion around the bay and the demand for location on land served by deep water is growing all the time. If you have deep water sites, really developed to a commercial stage you have an insurance of obtaining payroll enterprises. The people of Richmond should not idle one minute on this job of competing the harbor project as accepted by the Government and then extending the project still further along within the lines of the survey made by the Government engineers.

"Your big payroll development will come quickest and more certainly from the inner section of the harbor from Brooks Island north toward Cutting boulevard. Sheltered by the Nichol hills at the west you have in this area a haven for commerce and manufacturing that will be about 100 per cent perfect if you carry out the project as far as accepted by the government to date. The fortunate thing is that on this section of the harbor you have the land to accommodate industries, warehouses, rail lines and so on. Just deep water without acreage will not produce payroll to as great a degree and as rapidly as will such an area of level land and deep water as you will have inside the shelter of this low range of hills.

"This payroll increase and the development of Richmond will come just as rapidly or just as slowly as the citizens get action. I am told that of the harbor money left in the city funds there is $128,000 to match a similar sum of $128,000, which is the last in your Federal appropriation. That makes $256,000. The sooner a contract is let with this sum to further deepen and widen the harbor the better for Richmond. To get your results as fast as possible is obviously the best thing for all. Of the other money in your harbor fund something above $80,000, I have learned is going into Wharf No. 2, a most beneficial improvement. Sale of this $80,000 and more in bonds has added I am informed but one and one-half cents to your tax rate. Just think what you can get in the way of harbor development with so little expense to the citizens.

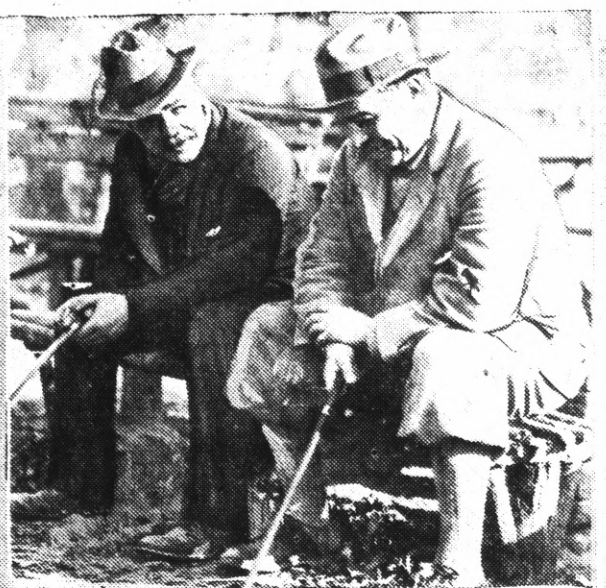

"I would say that plans should be laid at once to get another appropriation from the Government. The last year has produced enough in the way of enterprise on your harbor to prove the great commercial and industrial value that was the cause of the United States Engineers for Rivers and Harbors endorsing the project and recommending construction.

"Our corporation located on this harbor because of the sheltered site and the future we saw here if the project is carried through. We were assured that the citizens of Richmond were determined that this harbor work should be shoved as rapidly as possible and that the project would be completed as outlined.

"We have met with co-operation here from the very start. Your city officials have been helpful in every way we asked. Similar treatment and consideration of all industrial corporations seeking locations here will bring good results.

"We are developing land not only for our own use but for other large industries. These we hope to locate as the city proceeds with the harbor construction. It was indirectly through us that the Enterprise Foundry company recently bought a site of twenty-one acres across from ours, as you have already been told by the Richmond Industrial Commission, which laid this Richmond site before us and facilitated our location here. Building of the second city wharf, the improvements being made by the Duncan-Harrelson company and other work are all combining to make an era of splendid progress on your new harbor, but you should not have any delay in dredging."

Scientist Goes Darwin One Better In Southern Talk

(By Universal Service)
LOS ANGELES, Jan. 20.—Charles Kofoid, head of the department of zoology at the University of California, in Berkeley, went Darwin one better in further defending Evolution in a Pasadena speech today when he broadly indicated that man is only a "poor fish." Previously the noted scientist had confounded the 300 eminent churchmen and theologians gathered at the First Presbyterian church for the final session of the three day Pacific Coast Theological Society conference, by declaring that the Ape family was in some ways superior to the human race. His hearers broke into singing: "How Firm a Foundation," "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow," and other hymns. The songs were evidently meant as a reply to the scientist who made a similar remark in Los Angeles yesterday. "The guild of the shark becomes in a man an ape," Dr. Kofoid said. "Man has the base of a tail, for the tail itself has withered away through the ages through the lack of use. The monkey has use for his tail to hang from trees but with his transition to man he disposed of the necessity of this part of his body."

Man descended from monkey Dr. Kofoid told the divines flatly.

He asserted that the heart and abdominal troubles that man is heir to, can be traced to the fact that he descended from monkey and other animals that walked on all fours. The heart and abdominal muscles, Dr. Kofoid are weak in man.

"The ape is superior to man in many ways," said the scientist. For instance there is the divorce evil of man. Apes do not divorce their mates.

"The reason apes haven't developed further is because they have no civilization, no schools."

He declared that the man descended from monkeys can also be traced through the lobes of the ears and the whorls of the fingers. Readers of the Bible who in-

Junior High Section Of Camp Fire Girls Select New Name

The Junior high section of the Camp Fire Girls, met last night in the City Hall for a business meeting and social. At this meeting names were considered for the division, and the one decided upon was "Iagua" meaning "hello." Several Indian names were suggested, but the girls wished to take one which would show newcomers that they were welcome.

Addie Raney presided over the business session, assisted by Mrs. W. G. Miller, guardian, and Miss Maud Wood, assistant guardian.

Many of the girls chose their Indian names last night and planned to make their head bands at the next meeting on January 27. This meeting will also be a ceremonial meeting.

Dancing, games, and a song service was enjoyed at the close of the meeting. The Camp Fire song leader, Elkes Carpenter, led the singing.
